Their action was accompanied by a warning that legal action would be taken to block any attempt by School Board officials to eliminate such services as kindergartens, music, art and physical education classes in order to place teachers on a higher salary schedule.

When notified of the cut in school funds, H. Stanley Stine, president of the Board of Education, reiterated his stand that "we will have to eliminate certain services to give teachers the best possible salaries they can get, as far as is legally possible.

"Terribly Disappointed." Declaring he was "terribly disappointed at the commissioners' hasty
